Downtown Initiative Announced

Governor Andrew Cuomo recently launched the $100 million Downtown Revitalization Initiative – a comprehensive approach to transform communities ripe for development into vibrant neighborhoods where tomorrow’s workforce will want to live and work. The program, first presented in the Governor’s 2016 State of the State Address, will invest $10 million into 10 downtown neighborhoods across the state. The downtown neighborhoods will be selected by the state’s Regional Economic Development Councils.

“A thriving downtown can provide a tremendous boost to the local economy,” said Governor Cuomo. “This initiative will transform selected downtown neighborhoods into vibrant places for people to work, live and play – which will also help attract new investments and businesses to their surrounding communities. The Regional Councils have been key to generating new opportunities for regional economies over the past five years, and I am excited to have them spearhead this new effort to build on that progress from the ground up.”

Former New York Secretary of State Cesar Perales will chair this initiative and lead the effort with a team of private sector experts and planners from the Department of State, with support from NYS Homes and Community Renewal, as well as other state agencies as needed. The state will assist selected municipalities in building strategic investment plans and identifying key projects consistent with the initiative’s goals.

Each Regional Council will weigh seven proposed criteria to select their nominee: The targeted neighborhood should be compact and well-defined; should be of a size sufficient to support an active, year-round population; should capitalize on prior, and catalyze future, private and public investment in the neighborhood and surrounding areas; should be experiencing job growth within, or in close proximity that can attract workers to the downtown, support redevelopment and make growth sustainable; must contain properties or characteristics that contribute or that could contribute, if enhanced, to the attractiveness and livability of the downtown; and should articulate policies that enhance quality of life. The nominating criteria are at www.dos.ny.gov/opd/programs/DRI_ProgramInformation.pdf.

New Bill On Lead Poisoning

Senator Ben Cardin and 28 of his Democratic colleagues introduced the “True LEADership Act” (S 2821) to address lead poisoning, including several proposals related to housing.

The bill would overhaul the way HUD deals with lead in homes by amending and expanding the “Residential Lead-Based Paint Hazard Reduction Act” to include healthy housing activities. S 2821 would supplement Lead Hazard Control Grants with Healthy Homes funding since many homes that contain lead-based paint hazards also have other serious health and safety hazards, like mold and pests. The bill would also streamline eligibility requirements and allow studio and efficiency apartments to qualify for grants to address lead-based paint hazards.

The bill includes a proposal introduced previously by Senator Bob Menendez that would require HUD to revise its blood lead intervention regulations to coincide with those used by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. HUD would also be required to issue rules requiring an initial risk assessment for low income housing constructed prior to 1978 for lead-based paint hazards before a family with a child under 6 years of age moves into the unit. The bill removes the lead inspection exemption for studio and efficiency apartments that will be occupied by a child less than 6 years old.

Finally, S 2821 would establish an interagency Council on Healthy Housing to improve coordination and reduce duplication to create greater public awareness about recognizing housing-related health hazards, accessing necessary services, and taking preventive measures.

Coordination Between Continuums of Care And ConPlan Jurisdictions

HUD’s Office of Special Needs Assistance Programs (SNAPS) released a guidebook and video designed to facilitate coordination between Continuums of Care (CoCs) and Consolidated Plan jurisdictions. The guidebook and video provide an overview of the consultation requirements, identify ways that CoCs and ConPlan jurisdictions (including Emergency Solutions Grant recipients) can effectively collaborate, and assist stakeholders in understanding why and with whom they should collaborate. $174 Million For National Housing Trust Fund

HUD Secretary Julián Castro recently announced that nearly $174 million will soon be available for the inaugural allocation of dedicated resources for the National Housing Trust Fund. Secretary Castro said that HUD expects to announce in the Federal Register individual allocations to states later this spring, and that he anticipates the funds could be drawn upon as early as this summer.

Secretary Castro noted that “the NHTF is the first new affordable housing production program in almost a generation, and it’s the first to focus almost exclusively on extremely low income families.” Secretary Castro added, “The NHTF is going to provide a big boost to another effort my team has been focused on – making the promise of fair housing a reality for every American.”

In a media release, HUD noted that eight years after the NHTF was authorized by the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008, the NHTF finally began to be capitalized in calendar year 2015 through assessments on the volume of new business of the government sponsored enterprises, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac.

Residential Mortgages offer a complete line of fixed rate, adjustable rate, FHA, VA, SONYMA, new construction, and our Community One Programs. Many of the products are geared to first time homebuyers in helping them achieve the dream of homeownership.

In addition to all of our products, we are a participating lender in the First Home Club Program, as part of the Federal Home Loan Bank of New York’s Affordable Housing Program. This program is designed to assist borrowers, based on their income eligibility, in saving money to purchase a home. Financial assistance is provided in the form of matched funds in a 4:1 ratio for up to $7500 plus $500 for homebuyer counseling. The funds must be saved on a regular basis on a deposit arrangement in a special First Home Club account.

As interest rates remain at record lows, now is a good time for potential homebuyers to gather together their income and financial information and see if buying vs. renting, is a good option for them. Fair Housing Guidance Re: Criminal Records

The Office of General Counsel at HUD has issued guidance on the use of criminal records by providers or operators of housing and real-estate related transactions in the sale or rental of housing. When individuals are released from prisons and jails, their ability to access safe, secure and affordable housing is critical to their successful re-entry to society. Yet many formerly incarcerated individuals, as well as individuals who were convicted but not incarcerated, encounter significant barriers to securing housing, including public and other federally-subsidized housing.

A housing provider violates the Fair Housing Act when the provider’s policy or practice has an unjustified discriminatory effect, even when the provider had no intent to discriminate. In reviewing complaints, HUD will examine 3 areas of concern: 1) evaluating whether the criminal history policy or practice has a discriminatory effect; 2) evaluating whether the challenged policy or practice is necessary to achieve a substantial, legitimate, nondiscriminatory interest; or 3) evaluating whether there is a less discriminatory alternative.

A housing provider may also violate the Fair Housing Act if the housing provider intentionally discriminates in using criminal history information. This occurs when the provider treats an applicant differently because of race, national origin or another protected characteristic. In these cases, the housing provider’s use of criminal records as a pretext for unequal treatment because of protected characteristics is no different from the discrimination by any other rental or purchase criteria.

Article Explores Dilution of CRA

The Community Reinvestment Act (CRA) was established in 1978 to address years of federally-enabled bank red-lining, which isolated communities of color in the credit market — making it nearly impossible to receive mortgages on homes in African American neighborhoods. CRA required banks to reinvest in all communities they serve, a move that would aid historically overlooked communities.

A recent article by Mark Pinsky, President and CEO of Opportunity Finance Network, unearths the causes that diminish CRA’s impact. Pinsky looks to the future on how to best acknowledge CRA’s current limitations, and pave the way for high-impact investments to flourish in disinvested communities — particularly those with large African American and Latino populations.

The rise of predatory mortgage lending that led to the Great Recession is, in retrospect, evidence of CRA’s shortcomings. When bank regulators, among others, realized in 2008 and 2009 that the banking system might not survive the fallout of the financial services collapse, CRA pretty much came off the table. It was a matter of bank survival. CRA would have to wait. Ninety-eight per cent of banks got at least “satisfactory” ratings on their most recent exams while the people and communities they serve are struggling and suffering.
