EPA Issues New Lead Standards
More Restrictive Standards Expected To Protect Children

On June 21st, the EPA announced new, tighter standards for lead in dust on floors and window sills to protect children from the harmful effects of lead exposure. EPA is lowering the dust-lead hazard standards from 40 micrograms of lead per square foot (µg/ft²) to 10 µg/ft² on floors and from 250 µg/ft² to 100 µg/ft² on window sills. The more protective dust-lead hazard standards will apply to inspections, risk assessments, and abatement activities in pre-1978 housing and certain schools, child care facilities and hospitals across the country.

Lead-contaminated dust from chipped or peeling lead-based paint is one of the most common causes of elevated blood lead levels in children. Infants and children are especially vulnerable to lead paint exposure because their growing bodies absorb more lead than adults do, and their brains and nervous systems are more sensitive to the damaging effects of lead. They can be exposed from multiple sources and may experience irreversible and life-long health effects. Lead dust can be generated when lead-based paint deteriorates or is disturbed. The new rule directly supports the December 2018 Federal Action Plan to Reduce Childhood Lead Exposures and Associated Health Impacts. These standards are incorporated into the Section 402/404 lead-based paint activity regulations. In addition, lead-based paint hazards trigger reporting obligations under the Section 1018 real estate disclosure regulations. Please refer to those regulations for information on compliance requirements regarding these hazard standards.

The Final Rule can be reviewed at www.epa.gov/lead/review-dust-lead-hazard-standards-and-definition-lead-based-paint-final-rule. The rule will become effective 180 days after publication in the Federal Register. It is expected to go into effect by the end of the year.

Robust Housing Budget Passes House

On June 25th, the House of Representatives passed five bills for the FY 2020 budget that include significant funding for affordable housing and community development programs at HUD and USDA. Before the spending bills can be enacted though, Congress and the White House must reach a bipartisan agreement to lift the spending caps on defense and domestic spending required under the Budget Control Act of 2011. Without that action, there will be across-the-board cuts of approximately 10%.

Several amendments were approved for the package of bills that will increase budgets for the HUD 202 program, TBRA, Manufactured Housing Program, HUD-VASH, Indian CDBG, and Family Self Sufficiency. In addition, funding was added to better serve youth experiencing homelessness and a study on transitional housing grants. The bills also include funding to study alternative methods of calculating Fair Market Rents in hot rental markets, and to investigate delays in releasing CDBG-DR funding that holds up disaster recovery.

30th Edition Of Out Of Reach Published

On June 18th the National Low Income Housing Coalition released the 30th anniversary edition of Out of Reach comparing wages and rents throughout the US. The report illustrates that rental housing continues to be out of reach for millions of low-wage workers and other extremely low-income renters. On average, a full-time worker in the US must earn $22.96 per hour to afford a modest two-bedroom apartment at the fair market rent and $18.65 for a modest one-bedroom apartment. In nine states and the District of Columbia, full-time workers need to earn more than $25.00 per hour for a modest two-bedroom apartment. Out of Reach provides the Housing Wage – the hourly wage a full-time worker must earn to afford a modest rental home without spending more than 30% of his or her income on housing costs – for every state, metropolitan area, and county in the US. In 99% of counties full-time minimum-wage workers cannot afford a modest one-bedroom apartment. In no county can a full-time worker earning the federal minimum wage or prevailing state minimum wage afford a modest two-bedroom rental home while working a standard 40-hour week. On average, a full-time minimum-wage earner needs to work 127 hours per week (more than three full-time jobs) every week of the year to afford a modest two-bedroom rental home and 103 hours per week (two-and-a-half full-time jobs) for a modest one-bedroom apartment.

It is not just minimum wage workers for whom the rent is out of reach. Seven of the ten occupations projected to experience the greatest growth over the next decade, including medical assistants, home health aides, and food service workers, provide a median wage lower than what is needed for a full-time worker to afford a modest one-bedroom apartment. Visit www.nlihc.org/oor to learn more about the Housing Wage in your local area.

HUD To Hold Lead Training In Buffalo

The Buffalo Office of HUD will host a training on July 10th on the amendment to the Lead Safe Housing Rule. These free 3-hour trainings help you review federal lead regulations and discuss the LSHR Amendment for pre-1978 housing. Presenters will provide a step-by-step explanation of how PHAs, grantees, and owners respond to cases of elevated blood lead levels in children less than 6 years old living in a federally assisted housing unit.

Seating is limited and registration is required. There will be two sessions - the morning session is geared to Administrators of tenant based rental programs, including Continuum of Care, HOME, HOPWA, Section 8, Shelter Plus Care, and the Supportive Housing Program. The afternoon session will be targeted to administrators of conventional public housing, project based vouchers, HOPWA, Shelter Plus Care, and the Supportive Housing Program.

You may only register for one session. Register for the morning session at www.hudexchange.info/trainings/courses/lshr-amendment-training-buffalo-ny11/2905/. To register for the afternoon session, visit www.hudexchange.info/trainings/courses/lshr-amendment-training-buffalo-ny11/2906/.

Census Webinars

Update 2014 Info

The US Census Bureau held a series of webinars in June on the Survey of Income and Program Participation. It covers the survey content, design, and processing, as well as providing some handy tips for working with the SIPP dataset. The first session from June 3rd provides an overview of the dataset. The June 4th session covered Demographics and Residence data. The June 18th session covered Assets, Income, and Poverty. The webinar recordings, along with PDFs of the presentation slides and session transcripts are available online at www.census.gov/data/academy/webinars/2019/sipp-series/2014-panel-overview.html?utm_campaign=20190603mscacs1ccestanl&utm_medium=email&utm_source=govdelivery.

RRP Outreach Materials Available Online

Notwithstanding the fact that the Renovation, Repair and Painting rule has been in effect since 2010, it is clear that many small contracting firms are unfamiliar with the training requirements that apply to all firms performing home repairs and their workers. The EPA has waged an extensive campaign to educate construction firms, and to help them avoid significant fines that come with non-compliance. Despite these efforts, contractors continue to be caught without RRP credentials and fined.

Outreach materials about the RRP requirements are available at www.epa.gov/lead/lead-safe-certified-media-campaign-outreach-contractors.
Rent Control Legislation Approved

In a dramatic modification of New York’s rent control laws, the state legislature recently approved an extension to the rent laws in the New York City metro area, and included language making it possible for upstate municipalities to enact similar controls.

Previously the rent regulation system sunned, and had to be renewed by the legislature every four to eight years. During those years when the law was up for renewal, this topic dominated all housing discussion in the legislature. The recent action makes the rent regulation system permanent unless the Legislature acts to repeal or terminate the laws. There is no sunset provision in this legislation.

The new law allows upstate counties and cities to opt-in to the rent controls. Geographical restrictions in the old law were removed, so that any municipality that meets the statutory requirements, such as having a rental vacancy rate below 5%, may opt into rent stabilization.

Regardless of whether upstate communities opt-in, broader tenant protections will apply statewide, including the banning of tenant blacklists, limiting security deposits to one month’s rent and prompt return of security deposits by landlords, protection from retaliatory eviction, requiring landlord notice of rent increases or intention to not renew a lease, among other provisions.

The new law also provides protections for mobile and manufactured housing tenants. Rent increases in parks are limited to 3%, unless the increase is justifiable, in which case the limit is 6%. If a park owner claims a hardship requiring an increase of more than 6%, they must appeal to NYS HCR for authorization for the increase.

Mobile or manufactured home tenants attempting to purchase a home from a park owner or operator will have new protections under the Rent-to-own provisions of the law. A “Homeowners Bill of Rights” rider will be required for all park leases, and seasonal residents in parks will have new protections from eviction. If a park owner or operator changes the use of the park, they are prohibited from starting eviction proceedings against a tenant for 2 years, and must provide a stipend up to $15,000 when the tenant is evicted due to a change of use.

A joint statement by the Senate and Assembly leadership on the new rent laws was issued on June 11th, and is found at www.nysenate.gov/newsroom/press-releases/brian-kavanagh/joint-statement-senate-majority-leader-andrea-stewart-cousins.

Cooling Assistance Available

Older adults and people with certain medical conditions are at higher risk of heat-related illness. Spending at least a few hours in air conditioning is one of the best ways to be protected from extreme heat. Eligible households can apply for a Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP) Cooling Assistance benefit, which can be used for the purchase and installation of an air conditioner or a fan to help a home stay cool. Households may be eligible for a Cooling Assistance benefit if:

- the household gross monthly income is at or below HEAP’s monthly income limits
- a household member receives SNAP, Temporary Assistance, or Supplemental Security Income Living Alone
- the household members are United States citizens or qualified aliens
- a household member has a documented medical condition worsened by heat

- the household received a regular HEAP Heating Benefit greater than $21 this year
- there are no working air conditioners in the home, or the air conditioner is at least 5 years old
- the household has not received a HEAP-funded air conditioner in 10 years

Learn more about the HEAP Cooling Assistance Benefit and how to apply at: www.otda.ny.gov/programs/heap/#cooling-assistance or (800)342-3009.

HUD Certification Rule

This is an early heads up about a webinar sponsored by RCAC in August on How to Comply with the New HUD Certification Rule. RCAC’s July webinar for housing counselor certification is already sold out, so these are proving very popular.

The Final HUD Certification Rule was published August 1, 2017 and we have just over a year to ensure compliance. Do you still need to take the exam and aren’t sure how to do it? Do you know how to set up an administrator in FHA to complete certification? What does the final rule mean after August 1, 2020?

The Certification Rule webinar will be held on August 20th from 1:00 - 3:00 Eastern Time. Registration for this webinar is $50.

The register, visit www.events.rcac.org/assnfe/ev.asp?ID=1780.

Enterprise Names New CEO

Priscilla Almodovar has been named CEO of Enterprise Community Partners. Ms. Amodovar will lead Enterprise across its markets, programs and product lines nationwide as they work to create opportunity through affordable housing in diverse, thriving communities. Enterprise made the announcement on June 19th. She will start her new position in September. Ms. Almodovar has worked most recently as Managing Director at JP Morgan Chase, where she worked in commercial real estate and community development.

You may remember Ms. Almodovar from her time at the NYS Housing Finance Agency, overseeing multifamily housing finance efforts.

USDA Announces Water And Sewer Grants

USDA Rural Development announced the award of grant and loan funds to assist in the development of water and sewer systems in five rural communities in New York on June 26th. The awards were part of the announcement of 71 awards for infrastructure projects across the country.

The projects awarded are:

- The Town of York in Livingston County will receive $1,038,000 in loans and $830,000 in grants to extend water lines along Anderson Road to serve 189 families.
- The Town of Alexandria in Jefferson County will receive $2,191,000 in loans and $1,061,000 in grants to build a sewer treatment system serving 386 residents currently served by septic tanks.
- The Town of Pomfret in Chautauqua County will receive $3,224,000 in loans to install new water distribution in the LilyDale area, serving approximately 700 residents.
- The Town of Schroeppe1 in Oswego County was awarded $2,554,000 in loans and $1,200,000 in grants to create a new municipal water distribution system.

Earlier in the same week, Rural Development also announced grant awards from the Community Facilities Program, and four projects were awarded in upstate New York communities. Similar to the infrastructure projects noted above, these projects are financed by a combination of grants and loans, determined by financial need of the community based on Census data. The projects awarded in this round are:

- The Town of Fowler in St. Lawrence County received $187,000 in loans and $33,000 in grants to purchase a new plow truck.
- The Town of Norfolk in St. Lawrence County received $20,000 in loans to purchase a new police car.
- The Town of Stockholm in St. Lawrence County received $160,000 in loans and $30,000 in grants for the purchase of a new plow truck.
- The Town of Hammond in St. Lawrence County will receive $630,000 in loans and $100,000 in grants to build a new town office building to house court functions, records storage and a library. Once completed the town will vacate their current building, which will be converted to a public theater.

Across the country, the $50 million (of a total of $2.8 billion appropriated by Congress in 2019) Community Facilities grants and loans will benefit 631,000 rural Americans. More than 100 types of projects are eligible for Community Facilities funding, and municipalities and nonprofit agencies may apply for financing. Projects must be located in communities with populations of 20,000 persons, or less.

Housing Counseling Training Coming To Albany

RCAC will sponsor a training for Developing Effective Program Manager Skills in Albany from August 12-16th. Managing your housing counseling program can be a challenge especially in times of reduced grant income. To help you succeed, RCAC’s class covers these important areas of program management: HUD requirements for housing counseling agencies, drafting a counseling plan that meets HUD requirements, how to submit an invoice to HUD, drafting an effective disaster recovery plan, quality control plan and how to monitor them, building sustainability in your counseling program with a greater focus on community impacts, keys to marketing your counseling program using social media, and staff management.

This training is designed to help you draft a counseling program that meets HUD requirements, draft a quality control plan (and how to monitor), comply with OMB Uniform Guidance, and build sustainability into your counseling program.

Scholarships for this training are available. It will be held at the Hampton Inn and Suites on Chapel Street in downtown Albany (near the Coalition offices!) To register, visit: www.events.rcac.org/ev.asp?ID=1705. Please contact Teresa Bardwell at (720) 234-9565 or tbardwell@rcac.org for more information.

Council Formed On Housing Barriers

President Trump issued an Executive Order on June 25th to create the White House Council on Eliminating Barriers to Affordable Housing. HUD Secretary Ben Carson was named chair of the Council. The Council will be comprised of representatives of 8 federal agencies, tasked with exploring the reduction of federal regulations that prevent the production of more housing stock. The Council has a deadline date of January, 2021 to identify federal regulations and administrative actions that can be eliminated, and to align federal programs with state and local efforts to reduce administrative burdens that impact the level of housing production across the country.

Housing Counseling Grants

Wells Fargo Housing Philanthropy will open their online application portal for the Homeownership Counseling Grant program on July 1st. Applications are due by July 30th. Local housing agencies with a minimum of two years housing counseling experience are eligible to apply. The program supports homebuyer counseling, homebuyer education and foreclosure prevention counseling. There does not appear to be any geographic restriction on this grant program, although grant decisions are made by local Wells Fargo staff.
